

Are eSafety issues referred to in school policies (e.g. behaviour, anti-bullying, child protection)?

Answer: Yes, eSafety is a part of my school's policies

As Emine Niyazi Deveci Primary School, we believe that eSafety is an important element of protecting children and adults in the digital world while using technology such as computers, tablets, mobile phones or game consoles. As we find that the Internet and Information communication technologies are an important part of everyday life, we think that children should be supported to learn how to develop strategies to manage and respond to risk and to develop online applications. We believe that the society will be by providing quality Internet access to raise educational standards, encourage success, support the professional work of staff and improve management functions. We provide eSafety information to ensure that all children and staff are protected from potential harm online. We carry out up-to-date information activities on our school boards and corners. Under the leadership of our school principal, we established an eSafety team so that we can meet the eSafety needs of our students and teachers more effectively and quickly. We play games that explain eSafety in our classes, thus we raise awareness to our students. We place information posters on how to use electronic communication tools in our school corridors. At each parent meeting, we tell our parents the importance of eSafety.
